EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP IN NURSING EDUCATION & PRACTICE

In this year-long program, a cohort of executive leaders will: examine the politics of organizations; explore the "system in the mind" and its relationship to conscious and unconscious behaviors; explore authentic leadership and its influence on leading and following and becoming a champion for change; and identify disruptive innovations and strategy to manage them in complex organizations.

Participants Will:

- Explore how to become a leader coach.
- Enhance knowledge of organizational politics (e.g., leadership, authority, power, and competition)
- Explore co-creation and its impact on developing and sustaining innovation in organization.
- Maximize potential to release untapped resources in people and organizations.
- Become more of an authentic leader to effect organizational change and transformation.
- Manage crucial conversations.
- With an executive coach, analyze their strengths and development areas through leadership assessments.
- Participate in individual executive coaching.
- Design and implement a leadership project
- Develop at three-year career trajectory plan.
